

Majority Of Americans Want The Trump Administration To Expand Medicare Coverage For Obesity Medications

75%

of Americans believe that individuals struggling with obesity should have access to effective medical treatments, just like those with other chronic conditions

Majority of Americans support expanding Medicare to cover obesity medications

78% think it's important for Medicare to cover medications proven to help people manage their weight and improve their overall health

77% agree that providing access to obesity medications could help reduce healthcare costs in the long run

Majority of Americans want the Trump administration to expand Medicare coverage

71% support the Trump administration finalizing a proposed policy change expanding Medicare coverage to include obesity treatment

79%
Republicans

73%
Democrats

66%
Independents

74% support the Trump administration or Congress expanding access to intensive behavioral therapy (IBT) for the treatment of obesity

82%
Republicans

74%
Democrats

70%
Independents

For full results of the poll and to learn more, visit obesitycareadvocacynetwork.com

Linkedin.com/company/obesity-care-advocacy

@ObesityAdvocacy